NEW BELCHER HOIST IS NOW IN POSITION

The new electric hoist for the Belcher Mining company, which arrived last week, has been placed in position on its foundations and is now ready for the electric connections to be put into operation. The electric power company has a line of poles to set before this can be brought about, but from the present indications it looks as if the mine will be in condition to resume work in the underground levels some time within the coming two weeks.

Rapid headway is being made in constructing the new surface buildings, and work has now been started putting the frame work up for the building over the hoist, and in a few days the new surface equipment will be complete. As soon as the hoist is connected up with the power line, the first job will be taking from the shaft the cable, but this will not be a hard task, as a smaller cable will be attached to the hoist and the large cable raised into place. At the present rate of rehabilitating the surface, the Belcher will be able to resume work in the mine within ten weeks from the time of the fire which cleaned out every vestige of surface buildings and machinery.

At the Yellow Jacket shaft work is being continued removing the old surface buildings that have been in use for a long term of years, and in a few days the main shaft building around the mouth of the shaft will have been removed entirely. The change to corrugated iron buildings will be made before cold weather sets in, several of which are already completed. The usual good results are being obtained this week in the Jacket and Crown Point mill. —Virginia City Chronicle.

PIOCHE SHOWING BEST IN YEARS

MORE SHIPPING ORE IN SIGHT THAN FOR TWENTY YEARS

There is more ore in sight today in Pioche than there has been for twenty years, but the mines must produce and thereby show what they really have before this old producing camp can ever hope to take its proper place among the really great camps of the west, is the way J. B. Wheeler, one of the old timers of the camp, who has cast his lot there for twenty years, sizes up the situation. Mr. Wheeler is superintendent of the Lucky Boy and Milwaukee-Pioche properties. He arrived in town yesterday morning on business connected with these properties.

Mr. Wheeler says on the mixed train he came out on Monday the Mendha had three carloads of ore on their way to the Salt Lake county smelters. The Mendha, the Pioche Consolidated and the Demijohn are about the only properties of importance in the camp now shipping or preparing to ship.

On its No. 1 shaft the Pioche Consolidated is still sinking its deep shaft, the objective point being to penetrate the black ledge in the old Raymond-Ely mine, the shaft of which caved in years ago. The new No. 1 shaft is now down to the 1100 level, and the management figures that the black ledge should be encountered at the 1200 level, only about 100 feet further. The lead-silver-zinc ore in the black ledge was found in those days to be too silicious and refractory to be profitable, and except a few discouraging trial shipments sent even to Wales in hopes of finding a process which would treat the ores profitably, the great deposit was left intact. The new management is after this deposit, as modern methods can handle such ores with great profit. The Pioche Consolidated shaft is several hundred feet from the abandoned Raymond-Ely shaft, in which this ledge was encountered.

Owen Bailey, manager of the Demijohn, has hired a number of teams and is making preparations to begin shipping at once the ore on the dump. There are upwards of 1,000 tons of this second-class ore on the dumps. It should average from $25 to $50 a ton. The wagon haul to the station is between five and six miles. When the hauling begins it is expected to ship one or more cars a week, there being twenty carloads in sight of fifty tons each. Some ore is now being mined between the 200 and 300 levels.

Mr. Wheeler says he remembers when some twenty years ago one management alone in Pioche had a payroll of $100,000 per month. This was handled by W. S. Godbe. Those were lively days for the camp, with small fortunes being expended on railroads, smelters, mills and mine development. And yet in spite of those palmy days, Mr. Wheeler sticks to the fact that Pioche never in the past twenty years has had so much good shipping ore in sight as it has today. —Salt Lake Herald.
